'Back to the Future':

Citizens group may call for zoning ballot measure

■ Council backs up planning commission's favorable zoning interpretation for Kiewit Pacific project. Citizens group vows a legal challenge to the decision – and plans a November land zoning ballot measure to limit new industry. That measure might be reminiscent of 1990's 'Measure B.'

Attendance record?

Following an emotional meeting that may have set an attendance record for any West Sacramento City Council meeting (with an estimated 600 people on hand), the council last Wednesday unanimously approved the definition of the Kiewit Pacific bridge-construction project as a "permitted use" on the Port of Sacramento's southern property.

The decision gave pleasure to local labor union members heavily in attendance at the meeting, and upset members of a citizens' group that had opposed the decision.

The Kiewit Pacific company does not yet have an application for development, and hasn't yet chosen between three possible sites for its plant.

The council's action, believes port director John Sulpizio, will help keep the West Sacramento site in competition with Alameda and the Port of Stockton in courting Kiewit Pacific as a three-year tenant. The council is scheduled to adopt "findings" backing up the decision tonight.

Due to the heavy interest of citizens and the unions, the council meeting last week was moved to the Our Lady of Grace School auditorium on Linden Road, which has a larger capacity than the council's usual chambers at city hall on Halyard Drive. Still – although a number of people chose not to sit – there were more citizens than chairs at the hearing.

The council began deliberating the issue at 8:30 p.m. The West Sacramento Quality Urbanization And Development group (WS-QUAD) and the port's director finished their respective presentations to the council at about midnight. Presentations from community members on both sides of the issue drew the meeting out to about 4 a.m. – after many in the original crowd had drifted home.

"I was pleased with the decision, but I wasn't celebrating necessarily," said the port's Sulpizio yesterday. "I know there is a good deal more to do with preparing site plans, meeting performance standards and meeting the requirements of the California Environmental Quality Act. The issue before the council was a narrow one, and didn't necessarily 'grease the skids' for this project. All I can do is do my best to keep this site as competitive as possible (relative to Stockton and Alameda)."

Last week's council hearing came after both the mayor and WS-QUAD "appealed" the planning commission's 7-0 vote in favor of the port's position on the zoning issue. The zoning question was indeed narrow: it was whether or not Kiewit Pacific's plans to build 750-ton sections of a new Bay Bridge was a "permitted use" at the site zoned for "water related industrial," or whether it would require special city negotiation and approval through a "conditional use permit" application

Mayor Bill Kristoff appealed the planning commission's decision, according to a port official, largely to keep the project moving forward in expectation of the citizens' group opposition. The West Sacramento Quality Urban And Development (WS-QUAD) group filed a more scathing appeal, and had strong words about alleged health dangers from the project at Wednesday's meeting.

The project would be located under 2,000 feet from Southport Elementary School and nearby homes.

Near the beginning of the meeting, Mayor Kristoff explained the hearing's ground rules and responded to WS-QUAD's demand that he remove himself from the decision because he "filed the appeal on behalf of the port."

"I did not file the appeal on behalf of anyone," said Kristoff, refusing the request.

Kimber Goddard and Derek Backus, both attorneys and officers of WS-QUAD, made strenuous objections at the meeting to health threats such as alleged cancer-causing dust from the proposed concrete-casting project. They insisted that the project merited at least the scrutiny of the "conditional use permit" process.

Goddard also complained that the city's own codes permitted him to cross-examine his opponents' witnesses in such a hearing – a request that Kristoff and the city had denied.

Backus, president of WS-QUAD, told the council that they should not bend zoning definitions for the port and Kiewit Pacific merely out of fear the project might go to another site.

"The proponents, and particularly the port, have claimed that if this use is not considered a permitted use, the project will go to another site," said Backus. "This proponent has not come 100 miles inland because we have the most wonderful port, but because – this proponent hopes – we have not learned the difference between being business-friendly and being easy."

A pair of WS-QUAD's witnesses testified that they had been intimidated by labor union members when they went to the earlier planning commission hearing on the subject.

And WS-QUAD presented a cancer physician who lived in Davis, who testified that diesel exhaust and cement dust from the project "are major health concerns." He noted that the project would be located near Southport Elementary School, and "children are especially vulnerable."

Council member Jim Cahill was not impressed, asking Mandell "on what facts" Mandell's projections were based. Mandell did not estimate or quantify the dangers using statistics.

Mayor Kristoff also seemed unreceptive to Mandell, asking him only where he lived, and then repeating aloud the answer of "Davis."

Port director John Sulpizio stressed that the Kiewit Pacific plant, even if granted "permitted" status, would have to obey existing local standards.

"The port is definitely not requesting a waiver of any performance standards pertaining to air, water quality, noise or any other standard that applies in the zoning code," he told the council. "Cement will not be manufactured on this site."

Sulpizio and others told the council that the project would not release dangerous dust to local neighborhoods.

Sulpizio said that the project would produce 150 union jobs, would generate real estate taxes, and would produce secondary jobs for the city. He called the plant's product – 750-ton sections of a new bridge "unusual building blocks" that were analogous to other "building materials" allowed by the zoning code.

"Requiring a conditional use permit would set the stage for the city to effectively reject the use" and would "undermine timely decisions by the port and Kiewit Pacific," he added.

The council's vote was 5-0.

"I felt I heard some testimony that coincided with some of my experience on what has become a more 'basic and typical' product – the pre-casting of concrete," Cahill said later in explanation. "Certainly the scale of these pieces is not 'basic' or 'typical,' but that's not really the issue."

At its peak, last week's seven-hour city council hearing on the Kiewit Pacific project may have set a local city council attendance record

Fight continues

Following the council's favorable view of the zoning interpretation, Goddard said his group wasn't finished.

Yesterday, he told the News-Ledger that his group would file a "writ of mandate," asking the Yolo County Superior Court to review the council's decision.

"They abused their discretion and sold the citizens down the river," he said. "There was no reason in the world not to make this at least a conditional use."

He was asked whether his group would wait until the

Three arrests in Evergreen Circle killing

Three people have been arrested after a man was shot to death on the 3400-block of Evergreen Circle on Wednesday, April 3. The victim was not immediately identified by West Sacramento police.

According to the West Sacramento Police Department, officers were dispatched to the report of a shooting at about 9:05 p.m., where they found an adult male who had been struck with at least one gunshot wound. The man was transported to the UC Davis Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead.

Meanwhile, witnesses provided police with the description of the suspects and their vehicle, which was passed along to other law enforcement agencies in the area along with a "be on the lookout" bulletin.

Sacramento police saw a vehicle matching the description driving on the 5300 block of Wallace Ave., and stopped the car. Three suspects inside were arrested for murder and transported to the Yolo County Jail.

They were:

Maurice Cooke, Jr., a 21-year old Sacramento resident; Jamar Smith-Pasqua, an 18-year old Sacramento resident; and a 17-year old male Sacramento resident whose name was withheld because he was a minor.

Local police detectives believe the shooting stemmed from some kind of argument. Anyone with information is asked to call Det. Mark Tingley or Sgt. Tom Bowler, 375-6474.

PTA officer arrested

The treasurer of the Southport Elementary School Parent Teacher Association (PTA) has been arrested and charged with embezzling up to $10,000 of the group's money.

According to police records, treasurer Michelle Marie Knappenberger, a 31-year old resident of Sacramento Ave. in West Sacramento, admitted the charge when she was arrested on April 3.

Police and school district records indicate that Southport Elementary School PTA president Nancy Wilbur contacted police to report that she had reviewed the organization's recent bank statement and believed that her signature had been forged on checks made payable to Knappenberger and deposited into Knappenberger's account. Following that report, Knappenberger was contacted and arrested.

PTA groups are independent volunteer groups dedicated to supporting education at their local schools.

But the Washington Unified School District has offered its services reviewing the Southport PTA group's accounts to help determine the extent of any losses and work towards recovering them.

"We are glad to provide whatever assistance the PTA requests to deal with this regrettable incident," said Carl Treseder, assistant superintendent for business services in WUSD.

Knappenberger was elected treasurer of the PTA chapter in July, 2001.

Arlington Oaks solution?

Though overshadowed by heated discussion of a Port of Sacramento construction project, a small city milestone took place at the same April 3 city council meeting: residents of the Arlington Oaks subdivision approved a plan to phase out their septic tank systems and hook up to the city sewage system.

Following the count of "protest" votes, the council voted unanimously to proceed with the plan.

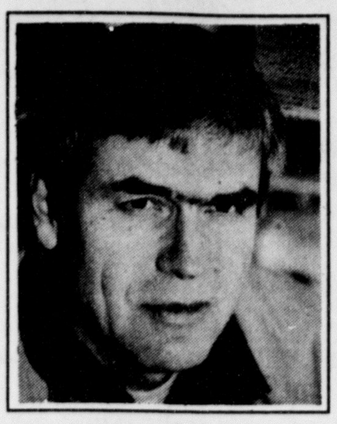

"It was one of the more important things that has happened since I've been on the city council," commented council member Jim Cahill. A number of previous attempts to solve the problem of aging septic tanks and a threatened local water table had failed.

City officials estimate the sewer hookups will cost about $2.8 million, or about $12,900 per property. Money from the city sewer fund and a state loan will help finance the project. Both loans would involve no interest payments. The city loans will be fully deferred until a home is sold, transferred or converted to a rental. Residents will be responsible to make monthly payments on the state loan. Very low income residents will receive further assistance.

Trying to make some sense of the Middle East conflict

Note: As you may recall, a few weeks ago I used this space to let a young woman named Rasmiya Masoud tell of her recent humanitarian mission to the Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon. This week, with the Israeli/Palestinian conflict still at its bloodiest worst, one of our Davis subscribers, Rebecca Witter, voices her opinion on the seemingly endless conflict in the Middle East.

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

How we love to hate a giant.

In the 1950s, '60s and '70s we loved to hate the Arab nations. We wanted to resettle Hitler's refugees and we cheered as they rallied against Arabic resistance to the partitioning of Palestine.

Today, as ever before, we continue to thrill at the idea of felling a giant. But today, for many people, the behemoth is Israel.

Perhaps it is time to ask from where this "gladiator-impulse" bids. Do we need an ogre inside to threaten the pure, simple voice within? Is this how we engage and ultimately empower ourselves and each other? Perhaps the Middle East crisis of the last 50 years is the universe's way of exposing the true Goliath.

What would happen if we told the story of the Israeli/Palestinian conflict without incurring judgement of right or wrong on either side?

For both the people who have lived on the land for the larger share of the last two millennia, and the survivors of Hitler who were bequeathed the land by colonial powers a little over 50 years ago, the situation in the Middle East demands a response that transcends logic. As human beings, we like to think that there is room for everyone on the planet, and until recently we frowned upon the Arab nations for failing to display such grace. But was such grace manifested anywhere else in the world, ever?

This is not to excoriate the world community, it is only to say that the world community was no more able than the Arab nations to rise to the universe's challenge.

Can anyone blame the Arab peoples their indignation? Can anyone blame the Jewish people their determination to stay put? And, after so many years of enmity, fear, loss, broken promises and deceit, can anyone blame either side their feelings of rage, distrust, and disdain? Are we surprised that the best intentions on both sides have been co-opted by zealots within each of their ranks?

What would have happened in 1948 if, instead of Goliath, we had seen a country -- a people -- that needed to be compensated by the world community for the burden it was given to bear in having to accommodate a foreign nation, a distant and unwelcome cousin?

And how would things be different today if, instead of Goliath, we see a country -- a people -- that has had to hold its own for too long in a land uninvited?

We condemned the Arab nations following the establishment of the state of Israel in order that we might see a Phoenix rise from the ashes of Auschwitz. If today the Phoenix is assuming characteristics we would ascribe to a hawk, how much is this so because we, of the West, have not been able to face the giant within? How much is this so because we would rather sling stones at the shadow on the horizon, then look to the beast which casts it?

The world has now born witness to the collapse of the World Trade Center, and the demolition of one side of the United States' temple of defense. September's debacle has been compared to the bombing of Pearl Harbor, but a more accurate description is that a perversion of humanity was demonstrated which is surpassed only by Hitler's gas chambers and the slave trade. Terrorism, racism, and exploitation rise from the same madness. We cannot afford to let terrorists or despots rule, but we also cannot continue to feed the madness which spawns them.

How much does our fascination with giants keep us, a world community, from responding to the challenge to make room for each other? It is the internal Goliath that needs to be felled so that the children before us, in Israel and in Palestine, might finally know our embrace.

SPORTS INSIDER

"Kings Korner"

The Sacramento Kings (57-19) are working on the magic number 3 to clinch the Kings first-ever division title since moving to Sacramento in 1985. Any combination of Kings' wins and Los Angeles Lakers' losses will secure the Kings the home court advantage throughout the playoffs.

The Western Conference is set, with all eight teams qualifying for the playoffs on Monday. Dallas (53-23) and San Antonio (53-24) are battling for Midwest Division and the second seed in the playoffs. Minnesota and Portland are fighting for the fifth and sixth seed. The sixth seed will be the toughest seed because that "lucky" team could end up playing the Lakers.

So, the big question for Sacramento is who will be their first round opponents? The Sonics or Karl Malone, John Stockton and the Utah Jazz!

The Kings, who are holding on to a 3½ game lead over the Lakers, are setting the NBA on fire after returning from their most successful road trip in the history of the franchise. The Kings are setting new franchise records with every win for most wins (57) and most road victories in a season (23). The Kings have won 10 of their last 11 road games and are now 23-15 after posting a 4-1 record on their previous road trip and going 6-0 on last week's road swing.

The Kings will play the Timberwolves on Tuesday night followed by a back-to-back game on Wednesday, April 10th against the Golden State Warriors.

The Kings will enjoy one day off on Thursday before they finish up the regular season with four games in six days starting with the Clippers on Friday night (7:30 p.m.-ch.31).

Major League Baseball

The Giants (6-0) are off to the best season start since 1930. Mr. Bonds has already hit 5 home runs as the G-Men prepare to host the Dodgers in another three game series starting on Tuesday, April 9th. The Giants swept the opening three game series in Los Angeles and then came home to Pac Bell to sweep the San Diego Padres.

In the first six games of the season, the Giants have outscored their opponents 41-5, while their starting pitchers have posted a 1.05 ERA (43 IP, 5 ER) collectively. The five runs allowed in the first six games of the season ties the Major League record, set by the 1915 Philadelphia Phillies.

The Oakland A's (4-2) are off to a good start after taking three out of four from the Texas Rangers and two out three games from the Mariners in Seattle.

David Justice, who is taking Jason Giambi's spot in the batting order, scored six runs and drove in eight last week and has been named the first American League Player of the Week for the 2002 season.

The A's hitters in the middle of the lineup are red hot with rookie first baseman, Carlos Peña, hitting .308 with a team-high four homers and seven RBIs, and third baseman Eric Chavez is batting .357 with seven RBIs. Leadoff man Jeremy Giambi continues to set the table with his .358 batting average and .464 on-base percentage.

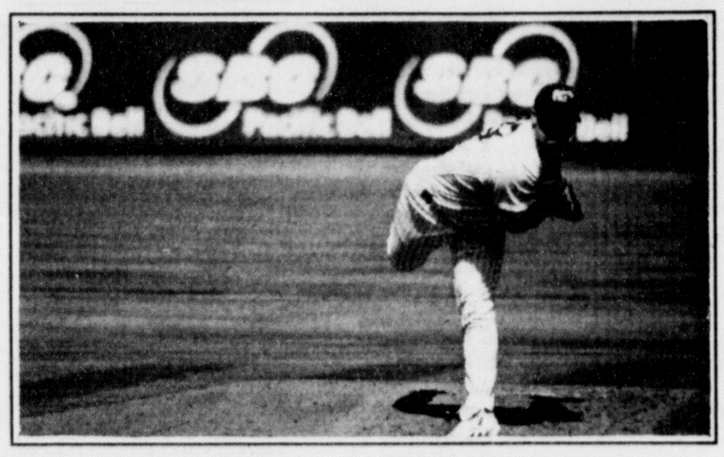

The A's will be traveling this week to Texas for a rematch against the Rangers and then to Disneyland to play the Angels before returning to Oakland on April 16th to host the Seattle Mariners.

River Cats

The River Cats (2-3) are off to a slow start this season playing on the road in Nashville and Memphis, Tenn. The River Gatos have a lot of fun planned for this weekend, with back-to-back firework nights starting with the Cats home opener on Friday, April 12th against the Nashville Sounds.

The River Cats will play a four game series against the Sounds and end the 8 game home stand with another four game series against the Las Vegas Stars. Tickets are still available; call (916) 371-HITS.

See ya next week!

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

Touring with Teddi

by Teddi Boylan

Columnist Teddi Boylan brings you her recommendations of places to dine and places to visit in the greater West Sacramento area. Her travels include both stops at our advertisers' establishments and other institutions. Enjoy!

The other day, when I went into Nick's Diner to have a terrific breakfast, I found a magazine in a rack by the door called "Karaoke Korner," second edition, for the Sacramento Valley. All of you would-be singing stars should definitely pick up a copy. They list many places, many tapes for sale, and many contests (that pay money!). If you can't find it, contact "Krazy & Kool Karaoke" at 371-4376, or call the magazine at 371-4802.

Speaking of the great breakfast at Nick's, you simply cannot beat the price. Nick's breakfast special is two eggs, two strips of bacon or two sausage links, and for just 99 cents each you can add hash browns, two pancakes, two French toast slices, a half waffle or toast. Served Monday through Friday from 6-11 a.m.

Good news for all you Davis residents: Abe and Rachel Berciles are expanding into your area. The old Denny's Restaurant will be the site of the new Abe's Café & Grill, serving breakfast, lunch and dinner at 4120 Chiles Road. Abe will be featuring American food, and I'm sure it will be the same great quality we get from him at Nick's Diner in West Sacramento. For more information or for reservations, call (530) 297-6166.

GOOD NEWS: I'm happy to say that the rumor that the Delta King may leave Old Sacramento is just that: a rumor. Pat Conley, the beauteous bartender, was the first to dispel the rumor, and then I had the good fortune to meet Julie Weinman, the Pilothouse Restaurant manager. There's a lot of cooking "on the river"! You can have lunch or dinner in the Pilothouse Restaurant, or perhaps you want to dine in the bar or in the outside eating area next to the bar. Lunches are reasonably priced, ranging from $5.99 for a bowl of luscious clam chowder to $11.95 for a grilled salmon filet in lemon caper sauce.

The Delta King dinner menu I found to be extremely reasonable, also priced from $7.95 for dusted calamari with homemade tartar sauce to $20.95 for slow-roasted prime rib. The restaurant also features a ten ounce lobster tail for $29.95. The Delta King Theatre presents live productions of comedies and dramas in its 115-seat theatre.

Perhaps the most popular spot of all is "Suspects," a murder mystery dinner theatre which is sold out almost every weekend, with one show on Friday at 7:30 p.m. and two seatings Sunday, 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Reservations are required; call 443-3600. Overnight packages are available.

Delta King Restaurant and Hotel: 1000 Front St., Old Sacramento. 444-5464.

The following is excerpted from a report by my friend Maryann Owens, who tells of her good time at the Elks Lodge Fish Fry on April 6:

There was quite a crowd inside and out, and the smell of crispy cod filled the air.

The event was extremely well organized. There was a person to oversee the buffet table, keep the dishes full and the crowd happy. Young people cheerfully served as table attendants, replenishing the bowls of clam chowder, containers of tartar sauce and ketchup, and clearing empty plates.

The bartender was a delightful gentleman. There were beer, wine, mixed drinks and soda for a nominal fee. Coffee was available at no charge. At least six men were out back preparing and frying the cod – I must say, they certainly kept it coming.

It was a well-packed house with lots of hungry people, young and old alike. Lots of families with young children, toddlers and babies. There were tables out back for those who wished to dine alfresco on that lovely spring evening.

Large bowls of clam chowder were placed on the tables for us to help ourselves. While it was tasty, it could have been a bit thicker.

Bob Nafus, Grand Exalted Ruler for the next two years, stopped at our table to chat for a moment. His wife, Norma, wasn't able to be there due to another obligation.

The cod was dipped in a light, crispy batter and fried to a golden brown. I'm not sure what it was seasoned with, but it was delicious. Hot crispy French fries, corn muffins and cole slaw accompanied the fish. There was even a variety of cakes for dessert.

There were well over two hundred people there. I would say it was a huge success.

last moment to file the court action, since a delay might threaten the plant's local chances.

"If you're asking whether we'll stall this thing out and not file until the 90 day limit, I'm not going to say that," he replied. "That's not the intent, but then again, we are not in a rapid hurry."

New ballot measure?

Goddard also announced that his group's board of directors has voted to pursue a new ballot measure to "fix" the zoning conflict for the long run. The initiative could be on the city's November ballot, if WS-QUAD gets enough signatures in time.

Goddard also helped spearhead a 1990 ballot measure designed to limit new industrial development in the city's south. That measure narrowly lost at the polls. At the same time, Goddard ran for city council – and, like the ballot measure, lost a heated campaign by less than one percent of the vote.

"The new measure is best described as, 'if at first you don't succeed, try, try again,' " said Goddard. "The times have shown that the zoning was wrong then, and it's wrong now and still needs to be corrected. The current explosions (over port development plans) are evidence of that. We have 2,000 more voters in Southport now suffering the economic and health consequences of those unwise zoning decisions. That tips the balance from the 44-vote difference in 1990."

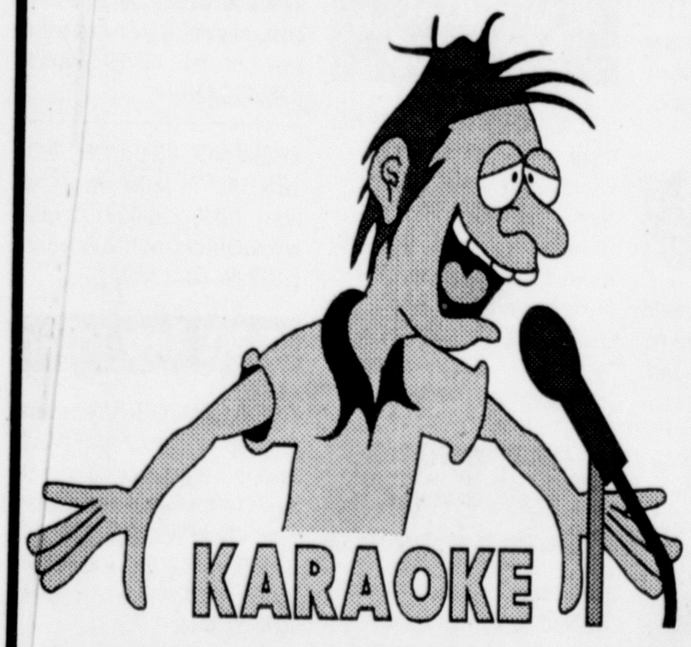

Goddard said the new ballot measure hasn't been written yet, and won't be designed to "kill the port." It would allow the port to develop agriculture-related industry, but might prohibit projects such as the recently-considered oil tank farms, power plant, ethanol plant or concrete-casting plant.

Port Director John Sulpizio said that the planned ballot measure was news to him, but that he questioned its legality.

"My first thought is that after a decade of planning for this property (under current zoning), and an expense of about a million dollars in contributions for the new bridge and for planning, such an action would injure the port's interests," commented Sulpizio.

The port may already have a "vested" interest in the current zoning, he added.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Concrete ideas

All seven West Sacramento city planning commission members and all five of its city council members have now voted to override the city's planning director, and allow an "easier" approval process for a construction company eyeballing the Port of Sacramento.

Besides their votes, these twelve officials all had one other thing in common with each other: they all made their decisions in a roomful of people overwhelmingly in favor of the construction project.

Without that political pressure, it's tough to imagine the same 12-0 cumulative vote. Lengthy presentations by port officials and a local residents' group have succeeded in showing that the project belongs, at least, in a "gray area" of local zoning regulations.

When all is said and done, it is tough to swallow the argument that construction of 750-ton bridge sections constitutes the manufacture of "basic and typical" building materials (such as bricks). The project probably should have been required to apply for a "conditional use permit" from the city.

As far as the "spirit" of the zoning rules, though, the project looks like a good fit -- if its impacts can be controlled. West Sacramento, in its wisdom or in its lack of wisdom, has zoned the property in question as "water related industrial." The casting of concrete pieces for transport along the barge canal seems appropriate for this zone.

A conditional use permit would have given the city great discretion in allowing the project in with protections for neighbors and for Southport Elementary School. The citizens won't have the same level of protection now; if the construction company goes forward with its West Sacramento plans, the city will have a lower level of protection. West Sacramento will have to depend on generic standards for development that are not tailored to this project and site.

One potential problem is the "temporary" nature of the construction project. Should problems emanate from the site, the construction company could simply respond to complaints by "playing out the clock," and dragging its feet until it is scheduled to shut down anyway.

City council got it wrong

Way to go city council! Schedule a hot issue at 8:30 p.m. with over 500 people in attendance, then come up with a 5-0 decision at 4:15 a.m. Gee, do you think there was anyone in the audience who would have stayed that late to wait for such a decision?

You wonder how much of that billion dollar contract Kiewit gave to the members of the city council in campaign contributions. I wonder who the members of the council represent? Surely not the voters.

Oh, by the way, Wednesday night's ploy isn't new. Remember the Southport Industrial Park and Measure B?

Flush it twice, it's got to go all the way to West Sac.

QUAD got it wrong

I attended the West Sacramento City Council meeting on April 3rd and have a few points to make.

First, there was a lot of discussion from the QUAD group regarding the previous meeting and how they felt intimidated by the large gathering. On April 3rd, this QUAD group intentionally turned the city council meeting into a mock courtroom to intimidate the opposing speakers. The group used swearing in of witnesses, legal briefs, and repetitious legal verbiage to intimidate citizens. These formalities are not necessary at the city council meeting.

Secondly, I was insulted by the fact that almost every speaker from the group referred to themselves as "highly educated professional people". Wow, newsflash QUAD, I also have a degree along with many other people that live in West Sacramento.

Thirdly, the literature and many of the statements made were full of deceitful information, half-truths and plain manipulation of the public. It was so evident that one, if not more, of the city council members became obviously irritated with the misuse of power by this group. This manipulation of the public was unwarranted. IT created emotionally distraught residents, some even breaking down into tears.

These QUAD residents say they are concerned about the health of their children. I, too, have children who were born and raised here in West Sacramento. I strive to protect their health. I also am a strong believer in teaching my children the virtues of honesty. I teach them not to lie, manipulate and deceive others. This is the way I lead my life and I try to lead by example. Try it sometimes, it pays. It is a know fact that children will try to emulate their parents.

In conclusion, I think it is evident that businesses and private citizens of West Sacramento need to beware. Manipulation, coercion and hidden agendas are headed our way. Any business enterprise or citizen could be next. Do not be preyed upon or manipulated, find out all the truth and facts before drawing the wrong conclusion.

I still wonder why a group of "highly educated professionals" purchased homes on an industrial lane with 500,000 to 1,000,000 square foot distribution warehouses on both sides, anhydrous ammonia tanks across the channel, and an existing cement facility on South River Road and did not anticipate industrial growth.

A corrupt decision?

(Editor's note: The following is an open letter to Mayor Bill Kristoff.)

Hello, Mr. Mayor. I attended the April 3rd council meeting and cared enough to stay until a decision was made around 3:45 a.m. I am 43-years-old, a 1.3 year resident of West Sacramento living in the Bridgeway Island development, and this was my first time attending a city council meeting of any type.

I am not a member of WS-QUAD and am not sure I want to be, but the council meeting I attended reassured me of my suspicion of the corruption of politicians/elected officials. I came away from that meeting, where I was told it was a difficult decision, feeling as though the decision to pave the way for this project was made well in advance of the meeting. I feel, with near certainty, that there are probably hundreds of West Sacramento citizens who feel the say way as I.

Also, I kindly ask that you answer the following question: How can a decision as important and far-reaching as the one made at 3:45 a.m. Wednesday be made after hearing eight hours of testimony? Who's idea was it to get this over with in one night? The fact is, a clear-headed decision is very difficult to make under these circumstances. The points made by both sides should have been looked at more closely and discussed by members of the council.

As human beings you could have done what you believed was right and just in your eyes and strengthened peoples belief in "the system" as a whole and politicians/elected officials in general, but you chose to strengthen many citizens belief that money/economics control the system. And I feel that's a shame for human kind in general. I suggest all council members take a hard look at their convictions, systems of beliefs and what is truly important to yourselves as members of the human race. I do not wish to participate in this so-called democratic system of checks and balances that I have just witnessed nor do I care to live in a community which has opened the door and welcomed this type of industry. I hope I've made my points and kindly ask that you share this with all the other members of the city council.

QUAD's lawyers put on quite a show

After attending the city council meeting on April 3rd I couldn't get over what those QUAD lawyers did, swearing in those witnesses who were on their side. What were they thinking, that the rest of us are liars and won't tell the truth? I don't know where these guys come from. They sure don't know a thing about us folks in West Sac.

Today we have the right folks running our city, both elected officials and a great staff. We are proud and sure-footed. I don't know how many people belong to WS-QUAD -- I don't think they have too many -- but to our new residents on the southside, you know a

INDEPENDENT-LEADER FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1926.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered 22 feet 10 inches, U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday. The gauge showed last Monday forenoon a reading of 24 feet 6 inches, a reading seldom seen at this time of the year on the Sacramento River gauge. The spinach crop in West Sacto district is practically harvested and that portion which is yet left to be cut will be finished the early part of next week. Grain crops and other crops in the West Sacramento district never looked so good as they do at the present writing. A like statement can be made for the Holland District and in fact along the Sacramento River as far south as Rio Vista. The dry period during the month of March began to show the effects of drought in many sections but the heavy rains since April 1st have brought all crops to a better average than has been seen here for several years. The total rainfall during the month of April is reported to be 6.88 inches, making the seasonal rainfall just a little above normal, or 17.04 inches. The California Cooperative Crop Reporting Service says:

Rainfall was deficient in all parts of California during March. Toward the end of the month pastures and grain fields were showing the effect of the drought in many areas. The generous downpour since April 3 has brought the seasonal rainfall well up toward the normal and with very few exceptions grains and pasture will stage a most wonderful come-back. Temperatures were about normal during the month with no frost severe enough to cause material damage. A generous blossom of the various fruits was quite generally noted and with a few exceptions a good set of fruit is expected. Aside from no precipitation, climatic conditions during March were quite favorable.

Grains—The data which have been embodied in this report for 1926 were collected as of April 1, which was before the very good Easter rain covered the state, The very great benefit from this general rain will no doubt be reflected in grain reports issued from this office in early May.

It must be realized that the prospective crops of wheat, barley and oats in California are very largely dependent on weather conditions during the next few weeks. In various localities and for the state as a whole the planted acreage each year is disposed of in three ways; namely, harvested for grain, harvested for hay, and abandoned for either grain or hay harvest. The method of disposal depends largely on seasonal crop conditions.

Mr. A. A. Hardy and wife, with their two children, have been visitors at the Newman home in Westgate since last Tuesday. Mrs. Hardy is a sister of Mrs. Newman but the Hardy family has its regular home in Fresno where Mr. Hardy fills an important position with the Standard Oil Company.

Considerable repair is being done to the County Highway leading from the M Street bridge to Westgate and southward along the road to Jefferson Blvd. which leads to Clarksburg. The work is being done by the County highway gang under the direction of County Engineer Proctor and under the supervision of County Supervisor Buckingham. The very heavy traffic which now uses this highway in getting the spinach crop to the cannery is responsible for a good deal of the necessary repairs. Very heavy trucks heavily laden with loads of green produce follow each other on this road on their way to the canneries in an unending stream and when the entire district is placed under cultivation it should be one of the best producing districts in the country. A great deal of produce raised in the Lisbon district and in the Holland district, also, finds its way to market along this roadway with the result that frequent repairs are necessary. The grade leading from this road to cross the San Francisco-Sacramento tracks has been leveled and the great chuck holes have been filled so that the roadway is now safe for autoists. The roadway under the subway at the foot of Fifth street has also been repaired and the bad chuck holes which prevailed there for some time past have been obliterated. Some work has also been done by the San Francisco-Sacramento Short Line track crew at the crossings at Westgate and that above mentioned, placing the road in a very fine state of repair.

Mrs. A. F. Nickell has returned to her home in Westgate after a visit with relatives in Kansas of several weeks' duration. Mrs. Nickell reports that the storms in the eastern states during her visit there were very severe and she was very glad to gt back to California. A joyful welcome received her at her home, especially her husband and son, Richard, being glad to have her back to attend to the housekeeping.

Plans for the school to be erected in the Westgate District or between Westgate and Carly Acres have been completed by the architects, George Sellon & Co., of Sacramento. The trustees, however, have hopes that the plans will be finished in a few days and as soon as these are finished the specifications will accompany them so that contractors may have an opportunity to offer bids for the work. A great many San Francisco-Sacramento contractors are anxious for an opportunity to bid on the construction of the school and have been making inquiries of the Independent in relation thereto.

Hamon Hutchinson was a visitor with his family in Westgate last week. He has been making his home in Glenn and may be joined there very

The fare to Washington will be 5 cents and to Westgate 11 cents.

DOG LICENSES TO BE ISSUED BY JUDGE BARRY

Following the enactment of a county dog license by the board of supervisors of Yolo County, it will be necessary for all owners of dogs in the county to procure licenses for the animals and register them with the justice of the peace in each township.

This action was taken by the supervisors following the loss of many head of sheep and lambs in the western side of the county through vicious dogs.

The license fee for each animal is 50 cents and the penalty for refusing or failing to register is death of the animal by the authorities or someone who will be appointed by the supervisors for that purpose.

H. R. Pearson, a part owner of the West Sacramento Auto Camp, has returned here from his home in Watsonville where he spent some time visiting his family. Because a great deal of work has been done in the auto camp, Mr. Pearson expects to remain here for some time now.

On the S. P. bridge at the sharp turn near I street in Sacramento an auto driver escaped with his life yesterday morning just in time and in a miraculous way. A great truck load of spinach from the Bryte district was on its way to a Sacramento cannery. The driver of the load made the turn too sharply with the result that the big crates keeled over, falling on top of an automobile going in the opposite direction. A mess of spinach was scattered all over the bridge and everyone passing that way took advantage of the occasion to get a mess. The top of the automobile going in the opposite direction was smashed to ribbons and splinters but the driver was not hurt.

Tom Maxwell, an employe of the Federal Government engaged in the capacity of securing evidence against blindpiggers, who has been making his home in the West Sacramento Auto Camp during the past few months, has been moved to a new field of endeavor and is now snooping around the Hutchison Lumber company north of Oroville. Maxwell lived on the fat of the land while in this locality but he was so well known to the bootleggers that his work here was more or less ineffective.

M. E. Huck, arrested on complaint of Roscoe Felts on April 8th for cruelty to animals, appeared in Judge Barry's court on April 10th and was fined $50 for having killed one valuable dog owned by Felts and wounding another. From the evidence produced at the trial it appears that Huck was passing along the levee between Rose Orchard and Carly Acres. Felts' dogs were in the yard of Felts' premises but barked at Huck who was outside of the fence. Drawing a large caliber revolver, Huck fired two shots, killing one dog and wounding the other. Judge Barry sentenced Huck to pay a fine of $50 or spend fifty days in the county jail. He paid the fine.

H. L. Russell was arrested by Game Warden W. J. Green on April 11th near Babel Slough for having in his possession 35 sunfish out of season. On April 14th he appeared before Judge Barry and pleaded guilty. He made claim that owing to poverty he was forced to resort to catching fish for his family and on that account Judge Barry assessed a fine of only $20 on him.

The service station being erected by Jack Reuther on Third street across from the town hall and at the intersection of Elizabeth street is about ready to start service. Reuther believes he will be able to open the station on next Monday and will have it in such condition at that time that it will be able to furnish a first class service. Three very modern pumps are to be used in the station. All the appliances like an air compressor, a water supply, and other requisites of modern stations will be installed. Reuther may subsequently add a line of accessories but so far has not decided definitely on doing that.

Mrs. P. E. Medlin of the West Sacramento district has been in a Sacramento hospital during the past ten days suffering severely as a result of an automobile accident at Third and P streets. For a time it was believed that Mrs. Medlin was not seriously hurt yet she suffered considerable pain and it was only when an X-Ray examination was made that it was found her pelvic bone was fractured in three places. Word from her bedside yesterday went to show that she was improving rapidly.

FINES OF $100 ARE PAID FOR POSSESSION OF LIQUOR

In Judge Barry's court last Monday afternoon Carl Lindquist and A. Lenci paid $100 each when they pleaded guilty to possession of liquor.

Their places, one in the West Sacramento district and one in Washington, had been raided on Saturday afternoon by Sheriff Monroe, Deputy Sheriff Marty and two federal officers, Shurtleff and McCoy.

At the Lindquist home a small quantity of liquor, about two ounces, was found on the premises. At the Lenci home a larger quantity was found and confiscated.

Appearing before Judge Barry on Monday at 2 p. m. both accused parties confirmed their pleas of guilty and were each fined $100, which was paid, and the accused dismissed.

The story written by a Woodland paper on this question shows in what light the Woodland papers regard this section of Yolo County.

Just as a sample of what an imaginative individual can concoct in a vicious and fertile brain a few paragraphs from a Woodland paper are taken to show the spite those people have toward this section of Yolo County.

Here are the few paragraphs:

With the cry of "the bulls are coming" early last evening, habitues of the Broderick boathouse district along the levee began emptying their humble shacks of everything that contained illicit liquor until, according to those interested in a raid which netted three of the notorious bootleggers and distillers of Westgate and Broderick sections, the river was veritably alive with bobbing bottles, small casks and cans, believed to have contained every concoction of the blind pig element of the "Long Beach" are between the two bridges out of Yolo County into Sacramento.

Shurtleff, who is co-operating with Monroe, and who according to the local officer is one of the hardest working federal officers ever in this district, discovered that eastern Yolo County was alive with stills, illicit liquor and bootleggers. Shurtleff, co-operating closely with Monroe, only entered those places, however, where it was certain that cases could be made out against those arrested. Monroe declares that he has received more co-operation through Shurtleff's office than any other federal agent operating out of Sacramento. It is claimed that the combination of county and federal offices will sooner or later clear up the entire county.

Woodland is not immune.

BOTTARO GIVEN ROYAL RECEPTION BY MANY FRIENDS

Returning from his honeymoon last Monday evening, Babe Bottaro and his charming young wife were given a royal reception by a few hundred friends at his apartment in Sacramento and when he visited his place of business the reception was a spontaneous outburst of magnificent gifts for his home.

Bottaro married Miss Dixie Nelson of Palm Beach, Florida, in Oakland on April 9th. A prominent clergyman performed the ceremony.

Bottaro is 28 years of age and his bride gave her age as 22 years.

Bottaro has been a caterer to public tastes for several years past. It might be mentioned here that in any business into which he launched he was always a success and it is mostly

FILLING AT M STREET BRIDGE GOES ALONG SLOWLY

The dredger Neptune is still taking sand from the Sacramento River bed just north of the M street bridge and depositing it on the levee to be moved westward to fill the grade for the new roadway that is to be built as one of the western entrances to Sacramento.

Contractor Tucker, who is in charge of the work and holds a contract, was deceived to some extent when he believed that the sand from the river bed could be moved westward a distance of three or four blocks by water flushing.

The trough built to convey the sand westward has been removed except for a short distance near the levee because it was found impractical in conveying the sand westward to the point desired.

As a substitute the sand is now being deposited near the end of the bridge and is being dragged by an endless cable to the low places where it is needed.

Some teams are also being used with Fresno scrapers to move the sand close up to the entrance to the M street bridge.

The work progresses slowly and it is barely possible may not be finished in the time specified in the contract.

SACRAMENTO NORTHERN TO COMPLETE YOLO BRANCH

San Francisco, April 10.—The Sacramento Northern Railway was given an extension by the Interstate Commerce Commission today until November 1, 1927, to complete the construction of a line in Yolo and Solano counties.

The proposed branch is from Lisbon station to Clarksburg, Sacramento county.

CHECK ARTIST HELD BY SACRAMENTO POLICE FOR TRIAL

Jack Hart, alias W. H. Hart, alias John Bond, is in the Sacramento city jail having been detected in Sacramento by George Kline of the firm of Kline & Hauser, wholesale butchers.

Bond, or Hart, or whatever his name may be, manipulated several fraudulent checks, which he managed to pass because they were drawn by the butchering firm.

He passed a check for $12.00 on Mrs. Roberts at the West Side Camp grocery, another for $25 on George Beale, another for a small amount on the Fulton Market at Fourth and M streets, another on the California Meat Market at 716 J street, and on other places of business.

Kline detected Hart in Sacramento and followed him, knocking him down and holding him until the police wagon was called.

He has not yet been placed on trial.

BOOSTERS' CLUB OFFERS SUPPORT TO BUS SERVICE

At the meeting of the Washington Boosters' club last Tuesday evening in the town hall a motion was made and carried that it be the sense of the club that all the possible patronage that could be extended by the members to the new bus service would be offered when the service was established.

Matters of other consequence took the time of the club members but owing to shortage of space the Independent cannot publish them in this issue.

lot of hard work went into having all those new homes built just for you. We gave up a lot of great farm land. We built a school for your children. We're going to widen Jefferson Boulevard so you won't be late for work. We have the best police force and firefighters here. We need you to be proud of where you have chosen to live.

I read the News-Ledger every Wednesday and I've been reading all the letters to the editor you have been writing. You need to know that our city council has wise and honest men on it. Every one of them have a mind of their own. If you would have listened to them the other night, instead of holding court, you might have learned something.

I also read that some QUAD folks felt intimidated by our hard-working union workers from the port. Well, those people have been with the port during all the hard times, and they're good people.

Anyway, those QUAD lawyers sure put on quite a show. Maybe Hollywood could use them? I hear they're going to start a new Perry Mason program soon.

They should have said 'no'

The April 3rd city council meeting must have set more than one record, namely the size of the crowd (about 580) and the length of the meeting (over 8 hours).

Although I do not live in that section of our city, I spoke in favor or sewer hookup for our Arlington Oaks neighbors. Since nobody else spoke on the issue and all residents from that area voted in favor of it, the city council appropriately voted to adopt the hookup plan. And since that item was handled so quickly, all else except the cement plant issue was completed by 8:30, when testimony by legal counsel and the public began. Basically it was a verbal battle of the local economy vs. the local environment. The zoning administrator had ruled such use to be a "conditional use", but the planning commission had unanimously reversed that in favor of "permitted use" for the cement plant. By upholding the planning commission and reinforcing the "permitted use" description of said port land, it means the project will move faster, less subject to protests from start to finish. But the plant still may be located at the Port of Stockton or Alameda County. Since the main goal is constructing and delivering many 750-ton cement sections to rehab the San Francisco Bay Bridge, it seems like Alameda County would make most sense. But by getting the ports of Sacramento and Stockton involved (competitive cost estimates), such moves should have the effect of driving down the Alameda bid. I hope so. I am not opposed to having more jobs and more money in the local economy, but if the big cement plant was there first, do you think the nearby homes, school, etc., would be permitted with all of that anticipated noise and cement dust? And how much water will it use? Any effect on our sewage treatment capacity? With our mostly prevailing southwesterly winds, might a major portion of cement dust blow over Sacramento, the river or down onto I-5? On the other hand, I was told at one time the local rice mills produced an air quality problem for Sacramento and by filtering out the rice hulls, etc., the pollution problem was resolved. Can Kiewit Pacific equally filter out the adverse effects on our air, water, sewage and the noise? Time may tell.

Will it be, as one city council member suggested, precedent setting? Yes, it will. Allowing an incompatible plan to be approved near where other approved planned developments are already constructed should have been a no-brainer with unanimous vote rejecting the cement plant.

and her interest in California missions is portrayed in the paintings on display. For instance, one of her favorite missions is Carmel. The contrast of the entrance and the adobe wall to the flower bed awash with color creates a beautiful pattern that becomes almost abstract. Next to "Carmel Mission" is another painting of a mission door which has a quiet serenity and is an invitation to enter the mission to see what would be revealed on the other side of the door.

The look of "Winter at Lake Tahoe" depicts a stream rushing pass denuded roots of the small plants clinging to the edge protected somewhat by the granite rocks while the big trees overhead created a canopy of protection.

Autumn is another favorite theme for Sieber who painted "Autumn Birches" in the brilliant fall colors of oranges, yellows and reds. The trees are reflected in the still water.

In "Autumn in Auburn" the somber oak trees quietly wait for winter while a mysterious mood is felt by the viewer. The colors used again reflect the changing season with warm fall colors.

Numerous other wonderful Sieber paintings will be on display throughout the month and may be viewed during normal library hours. A reception for the artist will be held on April 13th from 2-4 p.m.
